1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Petitioner seeks to overturn the University of California San Diego's ("UCSD's") finding 3 that he violated the Student Sex Offense Policy (the "Policy") and its imposition of a one-year-4 and-one-quarter suspension. Petitioner received this sanction after a female student 5 ("Complainant" or "Jane Roe") testified that Petitioner repeatedly digitally penetrated her contrary 6 to her multiple requests that he cease this abuse and her statements that he was causing her pain.

7 For four reasons, the Petition should be denied.

8 First, there is no merit to Petitioners' evidentiary challenge to UCSD's findings, which are 9 subject to deference under the substantial evidence standard of review. A three-person panel (the 10 "Panel") heard detailed testimony from Jane Roe about Petitioner's sexual misconduct on the 11 morning of February 1, 2014. The Panel also heard testimony from Petitioner, who summarily 12 denied violating UCSD Policy that morning, but who, when questioned about the digital 13 penetration, selectively invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. Petitioner 14 failed through his own testimony or otherwise to provide any detailed evidence refuting Jane 15 Roe's testimony, and the Panel found her version of events credible. Petitioner attempts to show a 16 lack of substantial evidence by rehashing arguments about Jane Roe's veracity that he made to the 17 Panel and that the Panel reasonably (and indeed appropriately) rejected after due consideration.
18 Petitioner has no right to a trial de novo on the credibility of Jane Roe's statements or to a 19 reweighing of the evidence. In light of Roe's testimony that Petitioner digitally penetrated her 20 vagina over her requests that he not do so, substantial evidence supports UCSD's findings.

21 Second, Petitioner received an abundance of process, and certainly due process, in his 22 student misconduct proceeding. Petitioner received ample notice of the charges against him and 23 had the opportunity to present arguments to a UCSD investigator, the Panel, and the Council of 24 Deans, and again in his formal appeal to the Council of Provosts. Without citing a single due 25 process case (or indeed any caselaw at all), Petitioner alleges a laundry list of "shortfalls" in the 26 administrative process. But Petitioner errs in basing his due process challenge on "contentions 27 [that] refer to rights of persons being tried for crimes, [which] are not rights [that] apply in an 28 administrative hearing." Andersen v. Regents of University of California (1972) 22 Cal.App.3d

1 763, 770.) And Petitioner has made no showing that any addition to the already substantial 2 procedural safeguards would have diminished any risk of error in the process.

3 Petitioner also posits a false choice between compliance with Title IX and the due process 4 rights of accused students. As the generous process afforded to Petitioner demonstrates, this is 5 simply not true. Petitioner had multiple opportunities to present his side of the story. At each 6 stage, UCSD considered the limited information Petitioner provided, but ultimately determined 7 that Jane Roe credibly recounted Petitioner's act of sexual misconduct.

8 Third, the suspension imposed was entirely consistent with the nature of the misconduct 9 and UCSD's Sanctioning Guidelines¹ and thus cannot be deemed an abuse of discretion.

10 Fourth, the Court should deny the Petition as to the provost Respondents for an 11 independent reason: such officials are not proper parties to an action for administrative mandamus.

12 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

13 A. EVENTS OF JANUARY 31, 2014 AND FEBRUARY 1, 2014

14 Jane Roe, a former UCSD student of the Mormon faith, was a virgin when she met 15 Petitioner in January of 2014. (AR 291; 393; 396.) Although she and Petitioner began a romantic 16 relationship, she told him that she planned to wait to have sexual intercourse until marriage. (AR 17 291.) On the night of January 31, 2014, Petitioner and Jane Roe attended a social event together.
18 (AR 294.) That evening Jane Roe drank for the third time in her life, and with Petitioner, drank 19 heavily. (AR 294.) At the end of the evening, Jane Roe and Petitioner returned to Petitioner's 20 apartment. (AR 296.) At that point, Jane Roe's memory of the evening ends. (AR 296; 298.)
21 Petitioner contends that they had "consensual sexual intercourse" later that evening. (AR 007.)

22 The next morning, February 1, Jane Roe awoke in Petitioner's bed. (AR 289; 296.)
23 Although she could not recall what happened the night before, her vagina felt sore. (AR 290.)
24 She suspected the soreness meant she had lost her virginity the night before, but she could not 25 remember giving consent or engaging in sexual intercourse. (AR 296; 298.)

27 ¹ "Sanctioning Guidelines" refers to publicly available guidelines created by the Office of Student 28 Conduct to improve consistency in sanctions. (See Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN") Exh. B.)

1 Jane Roe has consistently stated that on the morning of February 1, Petitioner repeatedly 2 penetrated her vagina with his fingers. (AR 289-90.) Each time, Jane Roe pushed his hand away, 3 saying “Stop, it hurts,” and “I am sore. Don’t.” (AR 290.) Jane Roe testified that, at one point, 4 Petitioner said, “Well, if it hurts then I guess I did my job right.” (Ibid.) Petitioner denied that he 5 and Jane Roe were “amorous” on the morning of February 1 but refused to answer further 6 questions or provide any specifics regarding his conversation with Jane Roe that morning or how 7 he may have sought consent to digitally penetrate Jane Roe. (AR 313.)

8 On the evening of February 1, Petitioner and Jane Roe were scheduled to attend a sorority 9 formal, and Jane Roe “didn’t want to uninvite him because [she] didn’t want people to ask [her] 10 why.” (AR 299.) Afterward, although she did not want to have sex with Petitioner, he “kept 11 asking” and saying “You are already not a virgin . . . you might as well do it again.” (AR 300.)
12 Eventually, they had sex after Jane Roe “gave up” and “didn’t try and resist.” (Ibid.)

13 B. STUDENT CONDUCT PROCEEDINGS

14 Jane Roe submitted a complaint to the Office of Student Conduct (“OSC”) on June 5, 2014 15 and then a Request for Formal Investigation (the “Request”) to the Office for the Prevention of 16 Harassment and Discrimination (“OPHD”) on June 16, 2014. (AR 392-96.) After receiving the 17 Request and meeting with Jane Roe, OPHD Complaint Resolution Officer Elena Dalcourt began 18 an investigation into the events of January 31 and February 1, 2014 as well as a potential act of 19 retaliation by Petitioner on May 14, 2014. (AR 395.) During the investigation, Ms. Dalcourt 20 submitted questions to Petitioner through his counsel (AR 453), received an “offer of proof” from 21 Petitioner’s counsel (AR 447), reviewed text messages, and conducted interviews of Jane Roe and 22 others (AR 395). As early as August 26, 2014, Ms. Dalcourt outlined for Petitioner each 23 allegation of misconduct that was being investigated, and explained that Petitioner could provide 24 any information on his behalf while the investigation was pending. (AR 060.) Petitioner did not 25 submit any additional information to Ms. Dalcourt subsequent to August 26, 2014.

26 On September 10, 2014, Ms. Dalcourt submitted the results of her investigation to OSC.
27 Although she found Ms. Roe “credible in her assertion that she was in a blackout during sexual 28 intercourse,” she concluded that there was insufficient evidence to show that “Mr. Doe knew or

1 should have known that Ms. Roe was incapacitated” on the night of January 31, 2014. (AR 077.)
2 Ms. Dalcourt also found that there was insufficient evidence of retaliation. (AR 080.)

3 But Ms. Dalcourt found reasonable cause to believe that Petitioner violated the Policy 4 when he ignored the objections of Jane Roe with respect to the February 1 digital penetration.
5 (AR 078-79.) Dalcourt found “Ms. Roe credible in her assertion that she objected to physical 6 activity during the morning in a clear and unambiguous manner, and that Mr. Doe repeatedly 7 ignored those objections, despite Ms. Roe’s telling him that his touching was painful.” (AR 078.)

8 On September 25, 2014, the Dean of Petitioner’s college offered Petitioner an opportunity 9 for an Administrative Resolution Meeting for the alleged February 1 violation, which Petitioner 10 accepted. (AR 414-15; 411; 352.) The meeting took place on October 13, 2014, during which 11 Petitioner was accompanied by his counsel and his father. (AR 411; 352.) Petitioner did not 12 accept responsibility; and, in compliance with UCSD policy, the Dean referred the matter to a 13 Student Conduct Review. (AR 351; 416.) On October 21, 2014, Petitioner had a Student Conduct 14 Review Pre-Meeting, in which the review process was explained. (AR 417.)

15 By at least November 10, 2014, Petitioner was notified that his Student Conduct Review
16 Hearing would be held on December 12, 2014 and was provided a copy of the OPHD’s 17 investigative report and Jane Roe’s June 16, 2014 Request. (AR 419.) These same materials were 18 provided to the Panel, which heard his Student Conduct Review. Indeed, UCSD gave Petitioner 19 every document that the Panel received and considered.

20 Petitioner made two pre-hearing written submissions to the Panel. (AR 423; 612.) In his 21 December 9, 2014 submission, Petitioner offered only conclusory statements oddly lacking in 22 detail as to the events of the morning of February 1. (See, e.g., AR 428 [“The next morning, 23 Respondent drove Complainant to her home.”]; 437 [noting in passing that Respondent 24 “vehemently denied” digital penetration].) Petitioner’s supplemental submission of December 12, 25 2014 similarly failed to address the morning of February 1 in any detail. (AR 612-17.)

26 Petitioner’s Student Conduct Review hearing was held on December 12, 2014, during 27 which Petitioner had counsel present. (AR 281.) At the hearing, Jane Roe testified and answered 28

1 questions posed by Petitioner through the Panel. (AR 289-311.)² During his testimony, Petitioner
2 selectively asserted his Fifth Amendment rights, while summarily denying that he had digitally 3 penetrated Jane Roe on the morning of February 1. (AR 311-14.)

4 On December 17, 2014, the Panel released its Review Report. The Panel found Jane Roe 5 credible in her assertion that Petitioner tried to digitally penetrate Jane Roe's vagina over her 6 objections. It thus concluded Petitioner had committed "Sexual Misconduct." The Panel 7 recommended a suspension of one quarter as well as other sanctions. (AR 619-21.)

8 Both Petitioner and Jane Roe then submitted impact statements for consideration by the 9 Council of Deans (the "Deans"). (AR 623; 626.)³ Petitioner did not take responsibility for any 10 misconduct, instead blaming Jane Roe's "twisted psyche" and "suspect motives." (AR 627.) Jane 11 Roe outlined the considerable trauma she had experienced since February 1, 2014. (AR 623-25.)
12 On January 13, 2015, after reviewing the Review Report, UCSD's Sanctioning Guidelines, 13 Petitioner's student conduct record, and the statements submitted by Petitioner and Jane Roe, the 14 Deans assigned sanctions, including a suspension of one year. (AR 636.)

15 On January 28, 2015, Petitioner submitted an appeal to the Council of Provosts (the 16 "Council"), a body made up of six UCSD college provosts. (AR 006.) Petitioner's sanctions were 17 deferred pending the outcome of the appeal. (AR 647.) After Petitioner submitted supplemental 18 information in support of his appeal, the Council upheld the decision of responsibility and 19 determined that a suspension of one year and one quarter should be imposed. (AR 390.)

20 III. ARGUMENT

21 In seeking to reverse UCSD's findings and sanctions, Petitioner bears a heavy burden.
22 "[I]t is presumed that the agency regularly performed its official duty." (Desmond v. County of 23 Contra Costa (1993) 21 Cal.App.4th 330, 335.) The court "must resolve any reasonable doubts in 24

25 ² Petitioner asserts that Jane Roe was not visible to the Panel (Pet. Br. at 5), but in fact members of 26 the Panel could see her face and expression throughout her testimony.

27 ³ These statements were submitted only after the Panel found a violation and only for potential 28 consideration in determining sanctions. (AR 365). Per UCSD policy, Complainant's impact statement was not provided to Petitioner, nor was Petitioner's provided to Complainant. (Ibid.)

1 favor of the agency findings and decision” and “may not substitute [its] own judgment for that of 2 the agency.” (McMillan v. American Gen. Fin. Corp. (1976) 60 Cal.App.3d 175, 181, fn. 6.)

3 A. SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE SUPPORTS THE FINDINGS OF THE PANEL

4 It is well-established that the California Constitution has granted the University of 5 California “quasi-judicial administrative authority to resolve disciplinary disputes” (Berman v.
6 Regents of University of California (2014) 229 Cal.App.4th 1265, 1272) and that the Regents, “to 7 be effective, must have considerable discretion to determine how best to carry out the University’s 8 educational mission.” (Smith v. Regents of University of California (1993) 4 Cal.4th 843, 852.)
9 Accordingly, UCSD’s factual determinations are to be granted deference and upheld by a 10 reviewing court if they are supported by substantial evidence. (Apte v. Regents of University of 11 California (1988) 198 Cal.App.3d 1084, 1090-91; see also Ishimatsu v. Regents of University of 12 California (1968) 266 Cal.App.2d 854, 862.) Under the substantial evidence standard, the 13 reviewing court “must resolve all conflicts in favor of” the administrative decision and give that 14 decision “the benefit of every reasonable inference in support of the judgment.” (Kazensky v. City 15 of Merced (1998) 65 Cal.App.4th 44, 52.) “Only if no reasonable person could reach the 16 conclusion reached by the administrative agency, based on the entire record before it, will a court 17 conclude that the agency’s findings are not supported by substantial evidence.” (Do v. Regents of 18 University of California (2013) 216 Cal.App.4th 1474, 1490.)

19 There is more than substantial evidence to support the conclusion of the Panel. Jane Roe 20 offered detailed testimony regarding the morning of February 1, including specific facts regarding 21 her physical discomfort, her demands that Petitioner stop the conduct, and the Petitioner’s callous 22 response. (AR 289-90; 298-99; 301-02.) Petitioner’s contention that Jane Roe “never testified” 23 that digital penetration occurred on February 1, 2014 and that her testimony merely demonstrated 24 that it was “not pleasurable for her at that time” (Pet. Br. at 8) is incorrect. Jane Roe testified:

25 [H]e kept trying to touch me, and I kept pushing his hand away and telling him 26 that it hurt. . . . And this happened several times with me just pushing his hand 27 and saying, “Stop, it hurts,” like, “I am sore. Don’t.” And he kept going back and 28 doing it regardless whether or not I said stop or not.

1 (AR 290; see also AR 298; 307.) Her testimony was consistent with Officer Dalcourt's
2 investigative report, which explains that, during an interview with Officer Dalcourt, Jane Roe 3 stated that Petitioner entered her with his fingers three times, despite her objections. (AR 072.)
4 Jane Roe's detailed testimony is "relevant evidence"—indeed, compelling evidence—"that a 5 reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support [the] conclusion" that Petitioner engaged in 6 sexual misconduct. (Apte, supra, 198 Cal.App.3d 1084, 1091.) It is well-established that the 7 testimony of a single witness is sufficient to satisfy the substantial evidence test. (Mickelson 8 Concrete Co. v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1979) 95 Cal.App.3d 631, 634.)

9 Petitioner's attempts to call Jane Roe's credibility into question should be rejected. Under 10 the substantial evidence standard, a reviewing court "will not reweigh evidence, reappraise the 11 credibility of witnesses, or resolve factual conflicts contrary to" the decision below. (Eidsmore v.
12 RBB, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal.App.4th 189, 195.) Moreover, in attempting to cast doubt on Jane Roe's 13 veracity by pointing out the sexual encounter on the evening of February 1 and the time that 14 elapsed between the incident and her formal request for investigation, Petitioner distorts the facts 15 and reargues a point that the Panel considered and appropriately rejected. Jane Roe explained that 16 on the evening of February 1 she was upset, traumatized, and facing pressure from Petitioner.
17 (AR 300.) Indeed, Jane Roe's frank admission that she consented to sex on the evening of 18 February 1 only bolsters her credibility. Officer Dalcourt found Roe's actions were "consistent 19 with the actions of trauma victims who attempt to cope with trauma by normalizing what has 20 occurred." (AR 408.) The Panel was well within its discretion to assess the credibility of Jane 21 Roe, to believe that her post-incident behavior was consistent with the behavior to be expected of 22 a traumatized victim, and to find that Petitioner digitally penetrated Jane Roe without her consent.⁴

24
25
26 ⁴ Further, Petitioner's story that Jane Roe made her complaint in response to Petitioner inviting 27 Jane Roe's sorority sister to an event in May 2014 simply does not add up. Jane Roe testified that 28 she expressed discomfort about the events of January 31 and February 1 long before May 2014.
(AR 302). Officer Dalcourt's investigative report supports this testimony. (AR 074; 076).
Further, no evidence or testimony was presented to support Petitioner's contention at the hearing.

1 Even if the Court were to reweigh the evidence, which the substantial evidence standard 2 does not permit, Petitioner's conclusory denial is insufficient to outweigh Jane Roe's detailed 3 testimony.⁵ Petitioner has not shown a lack of substantial evidence to support the findings.

4 B. THE DECISION OF THE PANEL IS SUPPORTED BY THE FINDINGS

5 A reviewing court, in determining whether an agency's findings support the agency's 6 decision, "must resolve reasonable doubts in favor of the administrative findings and decision."
7 (Topanga Assn. for a Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal.3d 506, 514.)
8 Further, even if there are defects in certain findings, only one is required to uphold the decision.
9 (Saad v. City of Berkeley (1994) 24 Cal.App.4th 1206, 1214-16.)

10 Here, several findings—3, 5, 6, and 7—support the decision that Petitioner engaged in 11 sexual misconduct. Petitioner focuses on other findings that he claims individually do not support 12 UCSD's decision, such as Findings 2 and 4. But Findings 2 and 4 merely summarized Petitioner's 13 pre-hearing submissions relating to the morning of February 1 and described Petitioner's limited 14 testimony, respectively; these findings demonstrate the Panel's awareness of Petitioner's denial of 15 the incident. Findings 3, 5, 6, and 7 confirm that the Panel weighed the evidence and determined, 16 based on Jane Roe's testimony and the investigative report, that Jane Roe credibly alleged that 17 Petitioner digitally penetrated her without her consent.

18 Petitioner makes much of the use of the words "tried" and "trying" and points to minor 19 variations in verbiage in Findings 5 and 7. However, Jane Roe explained any supposed 20 "inconsistencies" between her statements that he "tri[ed] to move my underwear and touch me" 21 and that she was digitally penetrated: she testified that she "didn't really want to get too super 22 graphic," in the June 16, 2014 Request and that the words "touch me" meant "insert his fingers in 23 my vagina." (AR 307.) In Finding 7, the Panel found Jane Roe's response as to this issue 24 credible. And, Petitioner's focus on whether penetration occurred is misplaced. Penetration is 25

26 ⁵ Petitioner argues in passing that the Panel improperly punished Petitioner for exercising his Fifth 27 Amendment right. The point is meritless. The Panel commented on the lack of evidence 28 supporting Petitioner's conclusory denial of the events of February 1; it did not draw any adverse inference as to his culpability from the fact that he remained silent.

1 clearly not required for a finding of sexual misconduct. (See AR 026 [“Sexual misconduct”
2 includes “voyeurism,” recording sexual utterances of another person, etc.]; RJN Exh. B 3 [sanctioning guidelines for sexual misconduct involving “forced groping/kissing”].)⁶ 4 Accordingly, the Panel’s findings more than support its ultimate decision of sexual misconduct.

5 C. PETITIONER RECEIVED A FAIR HEARING

6 Due process is “flexible and calls for such procedural protections as a particular situation 7 demands,” based on a balancing of the private and governmental interests involved. (Binkley v.
8 City of Long Beach (1993) 16 Cal.App.4th 1795, 1807; see also Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 9 U.S. 319, 334.) In evaluating procedural due process challenges to student disciplinary 10 proceedings, courts recognize that a student’s rights “are not co-extensive with the rights of 11 litigants in a civil trial or with those of defendants in a criminal trial.” (Nash v. Auburn University 12 (11th Cir. 1987) 812 F.2d 655, 664; see also Goldberg v. Regents of University of California 13 (1967) 248 Cal.App.2d 867, 881.) “[E]ach disciplinary proceeding is sui generis, and if under all 14 the circumstances the student was given a fair hearing and opportunity to meet any charges 15 brought against him, the court will not interfere.” (Andersen, supra, 22 Cal.App.3d 763, 770-71.)

16 1. Petitioner Had Fair Notice Of The Charges And The Evidence Against 17 Him

18 Petitioner claims that UCSD “improperly refused” to produce to him: (i) Jane Roe’s initial 19 June 5, 2014 complaint; (ii) an unredacted version of Jane Roe’s June 16, 2014 Request; and (iii)
20 the “statements” of Jane Roe and other witnesses made to Officer Dalcourt. (Pet. Br. at 13-14.)
21

23 ⁶ Even if penetration were required, the colloquial use of the word “tried” is insufficient to show 24 that the findings did not support the decision. “Tried” does not necessarily connote lack of 25 success, and “administrative findings need not be as precise or formal as would be required of a 26 court.” (McMillan, supra, 60 Cal.App.3d 175, 183.) And, it is also violation of UCSD policy to 27 “attempt to commit” sexual misconduct. (AR 025.) Petitioner’s argument that the term “sexual 28 activity” does not encompass anything more than sexual intercourse (Pet. Br. at 6) is also patently absurd. It does not take much to think of other forms of unwanted sexual contact (i.e., penetration with an object, forced oral sex), and the Policy makes it clear that sexual activity is to be construed more broadly. (See AR 025 [“Consent to some form of sexual activity does not necessarily imply consent to other forms of sexual activity.”].)

1 At the outset, Petitioner’s claim fails because “[t]here is no basic constitutional right to 2 pretrial discovery in administrative proceedings.” (Mohilef v. Janovici (1996) 51 Cal.App.4th 3 267, 302.) As the court in Gomes v. University of Maine System explained:

4 The Defendants contend there is no due process requirement in a university 5 disciplinary hearing to provide the responding student with exculpatory or 6 impeachment evidence. [¶] The Defendants are correct about discovery in 7 university disciplinary proceedings. Other than the limited notice provisions . . .
8 requiring that the student be advised of the charges and the nature of the 9 evidence—there is no formal right to discovery. . . . It is likely the University 10 could have given neither the Complainant nor the Plaintiffs any police documents 11 at all and survived a due process challenge.

12 (Gomes v. University of Maine System (D.Me. 2005) 365 F.Supp.2d 6, 18.)

13 Here, UCSD’s production of documents “did not result in an unfair hearing, nor . . .
14 prejudice the [Petitioner’s] case.” (Mohilef, supra, 51 Cal.App.4th 267, 302-03.) Petitioner 15 received the exact same materials that were provided to the Panel—the OPHD report and the June 16 16, 2014 Request—over a month before the hearing. (AR 438.) That more than complied with 17 UCSD policy, which requires such evidence to be produced just ten business days prior to the 18 hearing (AR 360), and with due process, as these materials fairly apprised Petitioner of the 19 allegations and the nature of the evidence. None of the documents about which Petitioner 20 complains were provided to or considered by the Panel, nor was the Panel required to consider 21 these materials. (See Goldberg, supra, 248 Cal.App.2d 867, 884 [Committee’s failure to consider 22 tape-recording of riot did not violate due process where other evidence was sufficient to provide 23 context of events].)

24 Petitioner cites no policy entitling him to the handwritten notes of Officer Dalcourt from 25 interviews of Jane Roe or third party witnesses, nor was he entitled to these materials as a matter 26 of due process. Weeks prior to the hearing, Petitioner received Officer Dalcourt’s detailed report, 27 which summarized the results of her interviews and informed Petitioner of the substance of these 28 interviews. (See Andersen, supra, 22 Cal.App.3d 763, 771 [no due process violation for not providing student a Professor’s letter describing misconduct where student was apprised orally of the charges set forth in the letter].) As Officer Dalcourt’s report makes clear, her handwritten notes of 14 witness interviews were irrelevant to the digital penetration on February 1. Those

1 interviews related only to the night of January 31, 2014 and the alleged retaliation on May 14, 2 2014, not to the events of February 1, 2014. (AR 400-01; 405-06; 409.)

3 Petitioner also was not prejudiced by any lack of access to Jane Roe's June 5, 2014 4 statement to OSC or by the redactions to the June 16, 2014 Request. The Panel did not receive, 5 and therefore could not rely on, the June 5 statement. Complainant's June 16, 2014 Request, 6 which Petitioner did receive in advance of the hearing, was the pre-hearing written statement of 7 Complainant on which the Panel relied. That UCSD did not also share with Petitioner the June 5, 8 2014 statement, which was virtually identical to the June 16, 2014 statement but for the latter not 9 including certain sensitive details about the traumatic impact Jane Roe had experienced, had no 10 impact whatsoever on the fairness or outcome of the proceedings. Neither did the redactions to 11 the June 16, 2014 Request, which relate solely to the negative health impacts to Jane Roe as a 12 result of the sexual misconduct. (Accord Nash, supra, 812 F.2d 655, 663 ("There is no 13 constitutional requirement" that students in a university disciplinary proceeding "receive[] any 14 more in the way of notice than a statement of the charge against them."))

15 2. Petitioner Had A Fair Opportunity To Present His Defense

16 Student disciplinary proceedings are "not analogous to criminal proceedings," (Goldberg, 17 supra, 248 Cal.App.2d 867, 881) and "the right to unlimited cross-examination has not been 18 deemed an essential requirement of due process in school disciplinary cases." (Gorman v.
19 University of Rhode Island (1st Cir. 1988) 837 F.2d 7, 16.) Indeed, the law in California for at 20 least half a century has been that "a full dress judicial hearing with the right to cross-examine 21 witnesses [is] not required" in student disciplinary proceedings "as such a hearing . . . might be 22 detrimental to the educational atmosphere of the University and impractical to carry out."
23 (Goldberg, supra, 248 Cal.App.2d 867, 881-82.)

24 Pursuant to UCSD policy, parties to the Student Conduct Review may provide questions in 25 writing to be asked of the other party by the Review Panel Chair, and the Chair "may exclude any 26 unduly repetitious or irrelevant questions or information." (AR 364.) Petitioner provided 32 27 questions to the Chair, many of which were posed to Jane Roe by the Panel. Although Petitioner 28 asserts the process was unfair because some of his questions were not posed, he fails to describe

1 those questions or their importance to his defense. And for good reason. The questions that the 2 Panel chose not to pose to Jane Roe were irrelevant, sought evidence already in the record, or had 3 previously been asked and answered by Jane Roe. Questions 13-19 and 21, for example, asked 4 Jane Roe to confirm that certain exchanges of text messages took place. But the Panel already had 5 the text messages in its possession and there was no dispute as to their authenticity. (AR 307.)
6 Certain questions regarding the events of January 31 and February 1, 2014 had been answered by 7 Jane Roe earlier in the hearing. (AR 306 [question 9]; 310 [questions 23-25].) Other questions 8 regarding Jane Roe's enrollment at another school (question 2) and her understanding of potential 9 consequences to Petitioner of her allegations (questions 6 and 12) were simply irrelevant.

10 The Panel acted within its discretion and the requirements of due process in declining to 11 ask these pointless questions. The Panel gave Petitioner the right to cross-examine Jane Roe, with 12 appropriate limitations to reflect the non-criminal nature of the proceedings, protect Jane Roe from 13 harassment and intimidation, and minimize cumulative questioning. Such limitations are 14 appropriate where, as here, they have "no bearing on the outcome of the hearing" and are 15 accompanied by robust procedures that protect the rights of the student. (Winnick v. Manning (2d 16 Cir. 1972) 460 F.2d 545, 549; Nash, supra, 812 F.2d 655, 664; see also Smith v. Miller (1973) 213 17 Kan. 1, 14 ["the school's interest can be protected by . . . limiting the scope of cross-examination 18 to prevent the student or his lawyer from badgering witnesses"].)

19 3. The Other Claimed "Shortfalls" Do Not Show A Lack Of Fairness

20 Petitioner's other fairness claims are without merit: First, Petitioner's claim that Dean 21 Mallory's pledge to stop sexual assault demonstrates bias is spurious. It would be both unusual 22 and disturbing to find a campus official who did not support measures to prevent sexual assault.
23 The Dean or any other official's general statement of opposition to sexual assault on campus does 24 not show that the official has prejudged the facts of a particular case. A school official's reaction 25 to a "type of conduct" does not show bias. (Goldberg, supra, 248 Cal.App.2d 867, 884-85.) And 26 the "right to an impartial trier of fact is not synonymous with the claimed right to a trier 27 completely indifferent to the general subject matter of the claim before him." (John A. v. San 28 Bernardino City Unified School Dist. (1982) 33 Cal.3d 301, 309.)

1 Second, the fact that Officer Dalcourt is a member of the State Bar is irrelevant. Ms.
2 Dalcourt was acting as an employee of UCSD in a non-legal capacity and was not representing a 3 client. Accordingly, she was not prohibited from communicating directly with Petitioner. (See 4 Rules Prof. Conduct, rule 2-100(A) [“While representing a client” a member of the bar shall not 5 communicate directly with a represented party]; 75 Ops.Cal.Atty.Gen. 223 (1992) [even in the 6 context of criminal investigation by a prosecutor, Rule 2-100 does not apply to interrogation 7 during investigation].) In any event, Petitioner has not pointed to any evidence that Ms. Dalcourt 8 communicated directly with Petitioner after she learned that he was represented by counsel.

9 Third, Petitioner’s claims that the Panel improperly considered hearsay and improper 10 character evidence are wrong. UCSD policy and California decisional law provides that formal 11 rules of evidence do not apply in Student Conduct Reviews. (AR 363; Goldberg, supra, 248 12 Cal.App.2d 867, 883-84.)

13 Fourth, Petitioner’s claim that the OPHD report incorrectly states that Mr. Doe “did not 14 recall” any touching between the two parties on February 1, 2014 is a factual, not procedural, 15 argument and does not show unfairness in the proceedings. Petitioner has not pointed to any 16 evidence in the record that the Panel relied on this portion of the OPHD report. In fact, the Panel 17 found that John Doe denied the incident. (AR 620.)

18 D. THE SANCTIONS IMPOSED ARE PROPORTIONATE TO THE SEXUAL 19 MISCONDUCT

20 “The penalty imposed by an administrative body will not be disturbed in mandamus 21 proceedings unless an abuse of discretion is demonstrated.” (Landau v. Superior Court (1998) 81 22 Cal.App.4th 191, 218.) And a reviewing court cannot “substitute its discretion for that of the 23 administrative agency concerning the degree of punishment imposed.” (Ibid.)

24 Petitioner has not come close to demonstrating an abuse of discretion. His argument rests 25 on the claims that he is “effectively being expelled” from UCSD and that “[t]here is no evidence 26 that supports Ms. Roe’s claim.” (Pet. Br. at 15.) Not so. Petitioner’s contention that he is 27 “effectively being expelled” from UCSD is incorrect and misleading. Petitioner has not been 28 expelled; he has been suspended for one year and one quarter and can return to UCSD upon

1 completion of his suspension.⁷ And, as discussed at length above, substantial evidence supports 2 the finding that Petitioner digitally penetrated Jane Roe without her consent and contrary to her 3 stated instructions that he stop. This serious offense warranted a serious sanction.

4 Further, although the Review Panel recommended a one-quarter suspension, the Deans and 5 Council were free to depart from that recommendation (Berman, supra, 229 Cal.App.4th 1265, 6 1275) and had ample grounds to impose a more substantial sanction. The UCSD Sanctioning 7 Guidelines, which were considered by the Deans and Council (AR 347; 365-67), recommend that 8 sexual misconduct violations involving “forced groping/kissing” should include a suspension of 9 “minimum one year” in addition to probation and other sanctions. (RJN Exh. B, at p. 3.) The 10 addition of one quarter to the recommended minimum sanction is justified for multiple reasons, 11 including (i) Petitioner’s prior violations of the Student Conduct Code;⁸ (ii) his refusal to accept 12 responsibility for the sexual misconduct; (iii) his callous statements on the morning of February 1; 13 and (iv) the trauma he caused Jane Roe.⁹

14 E. THE PROVOSTS ARE NOT PROPER PARTIES IN THIS PROCEEDING

15 An additional ground supports denial of the Petition as to the individual provosts.
16 Petitioner seeks a writ under Code of Civil Procedure section 1094.5 or, in the alternative, a “writ 17 ⁷ The Student Conduct Code clearly distinguishes a suspension from a dismissal (i.e., expulsion).

18 Suspension is defined as “[t]he termination of student status for a specified period of time with a 19 defined reinstatement thereafter certain, provided that the Respondent has complied with all 20 conditions assigned as part of the suspension . . .” (RJN Exh. A, at p. 20.) The note of the 21 suspension on the student’s transcript is removed when the suspension ends. (Id. at pp. 20-21) By 22 contrast, dismissal is defined as “[t]he termination of student status,” at which point readmission 23 to UCSD “shall require the specific approval of the Chancellor” and “may be granted only under 24 exceptional circumstances.” (Id. at p. 21.) A dismissal is noted permanently on the student’s 25 transcript. (Ibid.)

23 ⁸ Petitioner had twice been found responsible for violations of the Student Conduct Code relating 24 to consumption of alcohol under the age of 21, once before and once after the evening of February 25 1. (AR 640-45). Per the Sanctioning Guidelines, “increased sanctions may be imposed to take into 26 consideration the Student’s overall record of violations of all types.” (RJN Exh. B at p. 1.)

26 ⁹ Jane Roe’s impact statement highlighted the substantial harm caused by Petitioner’s actions on 27 January 31 and February 1, 2014: she became depressed and began drinking to cope with her 28 depression, struggled in school, was diagnosed with PTSD, and ultimately left UCSD. (AR 623-25). The Deans and Council were entitled to consider this in deciding the sanctions. (AR 365;

1 of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, directed to Respondents, the Provosts” (Pet. at 1-2 2.) A traditional writ of mandate under section 1085 is not the proper method for challenging an 3 adjudicatory decision of an agency. Such a writ is available only when “the respondent has a 4 clear, present and usually ministerial duty to perform.” (Conlan v. Bonta (2002) 102 Cal.App.4th 5 745, 752.) Petitioner has not pointed to any clear, present, and ministerial duty that the provosts 6 failed to perform. Rather, his only contention with respect to the provosts is that the Council 7 “committed a prejudicial abuse of discretion” as to the sanctions imposed. (Pet. Br. at 15.) By 8 definition, a claim that the Council abused its discretion is not one to compel performance of a 9 ministerial duty. (Morris v. Harper (2001) 94 Cal.App.4th 52, 62 [traditional mandamus “will not 10 lie to control an exercise of discretion, i.e., to compel an official to exercise discretion in a 11 particular manner.”]). Petitioner has not alleged that the provosts failed to perform any act 12 required by law, and thus may only proceed by administrative mandamus rather than a traditional 13 writ of mandate.

14 But an individual official without final decisionmaking authority is not a proper party in an 15 administrative mandamus proceeding. Where “[o]fficial and not personal action is the gravamen 16 of the complaint,” it is the public entity “and not the individual members, that is the actual 17 defendant.” (Sperry & Hutchinson Co. v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 241
18 Cal.App.2d 229, 236; see also Pettie v. Superior Court In & For Los Angeles County (1960) 178 19 Cal.App.2d 680, 682-83 [demurrer sustained where writ of mandate was directed individually to 20 the judge of the respondent court]; Belton Electronics Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 87 21 Cal.App.3d 452, 454 [same].) Like the individual board members in Sperry and the judges in 22 Pettie and Belton, the provosts were simply performing their official duties as members of the 23 Council for UCSD. Individual provosts do not have final decisionmaking authority, and are not 24 appropriate respondents to a petition for writ of administrative mandamus.

25 IV. CONCLUSION

26 For the foregoing reasons, Respondents respectfully request that the Court deny 27 Petitioner’s writ in its entirety.
